

POKEMONS

Pokemons

It was a rainy day. Manus, Ieva and Tamas were going to Tamas's house. When they arrived at Tamas's house they went into his sitting room and they started to play on Tamas's Xbox 360.

It was 10 o'clock. After playing for a few hours, the three of them went to sleep in Tamas's bedroom. His room was huge and he had three beds, two bunk beds and another bed.

Tamas and Ieva woke up at 1 o'clock. They crept down stairs and Manus was still sleeping. They decided to play on the Xbox 360 again because they weren't tired. Tamas's younger brother came down stairs. He touched the screen of the TV and immediately, he was taken into the TV. We both looked at each other and screamed. At the same time, Manus woke up and came down stairs. We told him what had happened.

"We'd better go after him," said Manus.

The three of us touched the TV and we were taken into the TV too. When we opened our eyes, we looked at each other. We had turned into Pokemons!

Ieva was Mega Basel, Tamas was Pikachu, Tamas's brother was Pichu and Manus was Raichu. It was like a dream but we knew it was real. We went to search for food as we were starving. We turned around and it was then that we realised we were trapped.

A boy was standing in front of us and he was staring at us. He threw a pokeball and we couldn't get away. He took us to his house. When we were inside his house, he released us. He kept staring at us.

"Hi," said Ieva.

When the boy heard her speaking, he started screaming.

"Stop screaming," we all yelled.

Eventually he calmed down and we were able to tell him what had happened.

"What is your name?" asked Tamas.

He told us that his name was Ash Ketchum. He lived in the land of Pokemons. He had never heard a pokemon speak before.

Ash explained that if we won a battle, we would get more pokemons. This seemed like a good idea. We soon found a guy who wanted to have a battle with us. Of course we won the battle and got lots of pokemons. We all went back to Ash's home and we took the other pokemons with us. We were exhausted after the battle so we had a little nap.

When we woke up, we decided to explore the Pokemon world. After walking for a few minutes, we came across a Pokemon shop. We went inside to get some pokeballs.

"I'd like to go home," said Leventa, Tamas's brother.

The truth was, we all wanted to go home. But we wanted to take the pokemons back to the real world with us.

But we didn't know how to get back to the real world. Just then, Manus saw a big river in the distance. We walked to the river and began to drink the water as we were all thirsty. As we drank the water, an amazing thing happened. We were taken back to the real world. We were all sitting in Tamas's sitting room again. Each of us had pokeballs in our hands. Without thinking, we threw the pokeballs and there in front of us were all of our pokemons.

Tamas's parents came into the room to tell us that dinner was ready. When they saw the pokemons, they were amazed. They told their friends and soon everyone knew our story. We were famous. Lots of journalists came knocking on the door to interview us.

They asked us loads of questions. It was great being famous but the best part was having our own pokemons to play with every day. It was so much better than playing on the xbox!
